

Installation and Activation Process – Instructions

Computer Requirements – Do This First

Windows 7 probably does not require you to download the following items BUT make sure before you begin the installation.

Windows XP and Windows Vista will require this action to start with.

- Windows XP service pack 2, Windows Vista Service pack 1
- Disk Space 7Gigabytes
- 32 bit colour AGP/PCI express video adaptor with Microsoft Directx 9.0c installed
(Download from www.microsoft.com – “Microsoft DirectX 9.0c End User Runtime”)
- DVD-Rom Drive
- Windows-compatible mouse
- Windows Media Player 11
- Internet access for Online activation OR email for manual activation.
- Not for Networks or Proxy Servers

Important Process for VISTA users

Vista users may find that the Vista security foils you. Before attempting the online activation first ensure that you have the administration rights.

To do this go to C:/ProgramFiles/MovementDynamics/MDPlayer2008 and right click on the application icon. Right click on the icon and look for ‘run as administrator’ to alleviate the problem.

Then complete the activation process.

If you are using Vista or Windows 7 the following dialogue box, or similar, may also appear

Click 'Allow' for the program to run properly

Installation

The disk is designed to auto-play. Please ensure that your computer's auto-play function is enabled. Follow the auto-play instructions for installing the program using the Disk.

Be prepared for a lengthy installation as you will be loading 6 GB of video files. A Dual-Core machine will take nearly 30min for the total install.

Activation

When installation is complete double-click on the Movement Dynamics icon on your desktop.

You will see the following dialogue box:

When activating for the first time ensure that the 'Internet Online' section is checked (a grey dot). Make sure that you are on-line.
